Les Baux. Carrières de Lumières. St. Rémy

Val d'Enfer to Les Baux; 2-3 miles, easy to moderate

Today's discoveries begin with a transfer (one hour) near Les Baux, another one of the official "most beautiful villages in France" that is perched on a rocky plateau more than 800 feet high, and which can only be reached on foot. In the Middle Ages, its court was famous for the minstrels and troubadours who came here to sing songs of courtly love. Walk to this mountain village and enjoy some free time to explore on your own, admiring the village's carefully restored medieval facades, browsing its art galleries and craft shops—and delighting in the sweeping views of the surrounding countryside. Enjoy lunch on your own in Les Baux.

You'll then transfer to the charming small city of St. Rémy. As you approach the inhabited section of the village, you'll be able to observe the small houses that make up the village and the busy Friday market. Stop here to explore the village and market, perhaps buying some local produce for a picnic lunch.

Returning to St. Rémy, you will meet up with another local friend, historian Mathilde Duvillier, who will escort you on a walking tour following in the footsteps of Vincent van Gogh.
