DAY 1: Full day in Prague

Stay on in Prague to uncover its many medieval treasures. Your included three-day Prague Transportation Pass (that you received upon your arrival yesterday) makes getting around a breeze.

Country Walkers provides you with City Information including recommendations on what to see and do in Prague during your stay

Your hotel is located in the heart of the Old Town, making it the perfect place to begin your discoveries. Dating back to 1091, this historical district is the oldest of Prague's quarters. Its center, the Old Town Square, is dominated by the Gothic-style Church of Our Lady Before Tyn, with distinctive twin gables. Nearby is the Town Hall, where you may choose to linger a while, or at least until the top of the hour. That's when the Prague Orloj, or Astronomical Clock, comes alive with figures of the Apostles and other sculptures marking time with a magical blend of wonder and precision. You might also wish to explore the Jewish Quarter, or Josefov, named after the Emperor Josef II. Located in the Old Town, or Staré Mesto, the Jewish Quarter includes the remains of Prague's former Jewish ghetto. Since many Jewish people died during World War II or were forced by the Communist regime to leave the country, the current Jewish community in Prague numbers only 5,000 to 6,000 people.

Prague's "New Town," founded in the 14th century, contains Wenceslas Square, once an ancient horse-trading site, now a modern shopping center. Nearby is the grand National Museum, the largest museum in the Czech Republic, where you can peruse exhibits of the natural and social sciences. New Town is also home to many splendid churches and Charles Square, one of the largest square in medieval Europe.

DAY 2: Full day in Prague

Today, you maybe wish to gain a full view of Prague by walking across the famous Charles Bridge, which has spanned the Vltava River since the early 1400s. Upon crossing, you arrive in Hradcany, the impressive castle district. Explore this vast complex, the seat of Bohemian kings, Holy Roman emperors, and, today, the President of the Czech Republic. The Castle District remains an opulent display of Prague's history, with towering St. Vitus Cathedral, old royal palaces, resplendent gardens, and grand halls. It is easy to spend the day within the castle walls—the largest ancient castle complex in the world—without retracing your steps. You'll find many opportunities to pause at charming cafés to refuel with strudel, pork & dumplings, and perhaps a glass of pale lager or pilsner.
